

A great Moncton success story

A great Moncton success story came further into the public eye last week when it was announced that the Tim Hortons 4-Ice Centre will now be renamed the Red Ball Internet Centre.

I had just recently moved to Moncton when I first dealt with the staff at Red Ball Internet almost three years ago. Originally I had done a story on the new company and then later I went in to actually check out their services.

I used the service for several months and found the crew at Red Ball really cared about their customers and about providing top-notch service for all.

The company stands as another Metro Moncton success story that was built right here in our backyard and I'm glad to see them sign on to what will hopefully be a long and prosperous relationship with one of our city's primary sporting facilities.